THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF RAILWAYS (SHRI R. VELU): (a) Yes, Sir. There is an increase in the incidents of Drugging cases reported in trains during the period January to September 2006 in comparison to the corresponding period of the previous year.

(b) and (c) According to Entry No. 2 pf the State List of the Constitution of India, 'Police' (including Rarrwaysancfvillage Police), is a State subject. Registration of cases, their investigation and maintenance of law and order in Railway premises as well as on running trains are, therefore, the statutory responsibility of the State Police. The State Police have a separate wing called the Government Railway Police (GRP) for dealing with all matters relating to law and order on the Railways. So, Railways have to depend largely on state police (GRP) for control of crime on Railways. Regular co-ordination meetings are being held by RPF and Railway officials with their counterparts in GRP and Police of concerned states to highlight this problem and find out effective strategy to tackle the menace.

To effectively supplement the efforts of the State Governments in controlling crime on the Railways, the Railway Protection Force (RPF) staff are being deployed to escort many trains and also on access control
